

Inhalation Products

Flower, infused pre-rolls, concentrates, and vape carts.

Introduction

Inhalation offers immediate onset and fine-grained control when used intentionally. CARTA aligns inhalation options with chemotypes so you can match direction to your goals—calm, uplift, clarity, or rest.

Science Explained Simply

- Fast kinetics: Effects are felt quickly; this makes inhalation suitable for situational use and learning.
- Dose control: Small puffs are easier to titrate than large, infrequent doses.
- Purity & transparency: CARTA reports cannabinoid/terpene profiles so customers can choose with confidence.

CARTA Product Spotlight

- Flower: Whole-plant experience with clear chemotype labels.
- Infused Pre-rolls: Consistent convenience; helpful for shared settings.
- Concentrates & Vape Carts: Potent, efficient formats—best for experienced users or micro-inhalations.

Practical Guidance

Start with one or two short inhalations; wait and reassess. Pair with a chemotype-matched capsule for synergy (e.g., Calm & Focus + clarity-forward flower). Log context and response in the app.

FAQ & Myth vs Fact

Q: Is vaping safer than smoking?

A: Vaping avoids combustion volume when done correctly, but quality and temperature control matter. Choose vetted products and keep temperatures moderate.

Responsible Use & Safety Notes

Avoid long, deep inhalations when learning your response. Never use unknown cartridges. Do not drive post-use.

Key Takeaway

Inhalation can be precise. With chemotype labels, it becomes a predictable part of your stack—not a gamble.
